

NOMINATION FORM FOR SENATE PARTY-LIST SEATS

Part XIA of the Electoral Act [Chapter 2:13]

Notes:

A political party contesting the National Assembly constituency elections may submit a party list for each Province in which it is contesting. The party list for each province must have on it six candidates.

This list must be lodged with the provincial elections officer for the province to which it relates. The provincial elections officer will be the nomination officer for that province.

This party list must be submitted to the provincial nomination officer on nomination day. However, political parties are advised that it is in their interests to submit these lists to the head office of the Commission on any day starting from the fourth day after the publication of election proclamation and ending two days before the sitting of the nomination court so that the lists can be checked in advance of the sitting of the nomination court. In this way any problems with the list can be pointed out to the political party to enable timeous rectification.
